New Hearings On Subversion Start Tuesday

The House Internal Security Committee plans new hearing starting Tuesday to "bring out the true and current nature of the extent and danger of Communist infiltration in the United States from Cuba," Rep. Claude Pepper said yesterday.

The Florida Democrat, who heads a subcommittee that will take the testimony, said witnesses will include Dr. Manolo Reyes, Latin news editor for television station WTVJ in Miami; Dr. William C. Davis, professor of international affairs at the National War College; and Ruby H. Phillips, a former Havana correspondent for the New York Times.

Pepper said at least two more witnesses "with intimate personal knowledge of Castro's Cuba will be heard," although he declined to identify them now "because of possible danger to them."
